

MAGIC MUSEUM MARKS ANOTHER FIRST – HOLIDAY HOURS

The American Museum of Magic is pleased to announce hours of operation between Thanksgiving and Christmas. The museum will be open Saturdays and Sundays from November 26 to December 18. The museum will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays and from noon to 4 p.m. on Sundays.

“This is a big step for the American Museum of Magic”, said Jeff Taylor, the museum’s director. “AMM has traditionally closed at Halloween and not reopened until April Fool’s Day. The museum’s Board of Directors felt that we should extend the hours of operation to capitalize on the great success the museum has had this year”.

In addition to the weekend hours, the museum will also be open on Friday, December 2, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. to participate in the annual Marshall Retailers Open House. “The Open House is a great way for the museum to draw in new visitors,” said Taylor. “Most people don’t realize that we have a gift shop. We sell books, magic kits, postcards and other items that will make great gifts for any magician – novice or professional”.

The extended hours of operation will coincide with those of the Marshall Historical Society’s Honolulu House. “The Historical Society will have the Honolulu House open and decorated for the holiday season,” said Taylor. “It seems only natural that with so many people in town to shop, we should both be open to provide some additional entertainment to our visitors.”
